AATPROAD LINE

ffor the Richmond Dispatch.] . "I Never Will Repudiate!" A Song for the Times-Respectfully Dedi-cated to the Legislature of Virginia. BY HAROLD SKINFOLE.

I never will repudlate:
It is a bateful word,
And from the lips of gentlemen
It never should be heard.

I never fail to own my dabts,
Whatever their amount:
It may be something more or less-I never stop to count. I'm always prompt to liquidate
In bonds or "lowe you's,"
No one can say I ever did
A settlement refuse.

But when such little things mature, (The bond, or I. O. U.,) I reckon on my creditors Agreeing to renew. Because the times are always hard,

And I am always poor; And every day there comes a dun— The wolf is at my door.

I had a little nigger, once.
Would fetch two hundred dollars.
But freedom came, and now he struts in boots and paper collars.

My capital is gone, of course, On which was my reliance; and how I am to pay my debta Bents my financial science.

Comes in from time to time;
But one must live; I want it all—
I want it—every dime. In clothes and food I'm very cheap-Don't often take a ride; And there are many other things

I have myself denied. Some whiskey I must have for health—(Don't take that for a joke)—
and, for the asthma, I'm obliged
To breathe tobacco smoke.

To theatres and circuses I find it good to go;
It cheers my spirits oftentimes
To see a funny show.

So, when the rolling months have brought The year towards its end, And Christmas time has come again, I've little left to spend.

But I will not repudiate ! From all the sum of all my del I would not bate a nought!

Although I can pay nothing row— (And sin't a going to try)— I'll fairly own the dest in full— On that you may rely.

And when the times get bette And I have some cash to spare,
Pil call up all my creditors.
And pay them—"on the square!" [Harold Skimpole, let us say, is a distin-Buished lawyer of Virginia.]

How Vesuvius Operates.

(From a Letter by Jo Medill to the Chicago Tri-

No smoke such as that produced by the combustion of any carbon substances ever issues from the mountain. The seeming s'smoke" is always steam or aqueous vapor, more or less dark as it happens to be charged with ashes. When this vapor condenses in The atmosphere it descends in the form of rain, and, if much mixed with ashes, it falls in a paste or muddy shower. During great eruptions, when enormous quantities of ashes are ejected with thick clouds of vapor, they fall in torrents of mud and water. This is exactly what happened 1,800 years ago, when Pompeii, Herculaneum, Stabiæ, and several other towns were destroyed by that awful eruption of A. D. 79. The tremendous heat in the bowels of the mountain, coming in contact with a great body LLAMA POINTS and JACKETS, embracing all of water from the Mediterranean Sea, which had percolated through the fissures of the stratified limestone and other rocks, with the internal fires instantly acting on it like furnace-heat, converted it into steam. The sudden conversion of millions of cubic feet of water into high steam by the subterranean fires produced the phenomena of exploding steam on a vast scale. The sudden and resistless expansion of water into 1,700 times its original bulk tore great rents and fissures in the sides of the mountain, through which, as the lowest points of exit, flowed heavy streams of melted lava, and from the crater itself, being the highest part of the mountain, and acting like a chimney, issued forth vast clouds of steam, mixed with sulphur vapor and enormous quantities of ashes and showers and stones, which were flung out by the explosions of the water into steam. The fire that is seen above the crater during an eruption is not flame, but is the reflection of the molten lava within the crater appon the clouds of aqueous vapor and ashes suspended over it. The lightning which is seen darting from the edges of the black cloud is produced by the electricity which is the result of the rapid condensation of vapor into water, and of water into steam, under the effect of the heat radiated from the cra-

Previous to the great eruption of A. D. 79, which destroyed Pompeii, there had been a passive period extending back beyond recorded history. The Greeks had settled around the Bay of Naples one thousand years before that event, and their early writers had never heard of an eruption of GRACE BEFORE MEAT.—Beecher being asked: "Is grace before meat an ordinance and ita regular observance a duty ?".says: No. Christianity does not stop or stoop to regulate rites and ceremonies. It deals with the general principles of godliness, leaving men to adopt such particular methods of culture and such modes of expressing religious feeling as may seem best. Grace before meat is a most appropriate and beautiful custom. But he who says grace should est with genuine thankfulness and moderation, not as a glutinous man or a wine-bibber.

George M. Clark, of large renown as showman, and of goodly repute as a gentleman, was giving a deposition in Manchester, N. H., the other day in the case of Kelsey vs. Osborn. James F. Briggs, counsel for the plaintiff, did not like the looks of the deposition from his standpoint, and undertook to weaken it by belittling the witness. Hence he began, with a sneer: "You are in the negro minstrel business, I believe?"
"Yes, sir," was the reply. "You black your face and sing for a living, do you?"
"Yes, sir." "Well, don't you call that rather low business to follow?" "I don't know but it is, sir; but it is so much better than that of my father before me that I am rather proud of it." "Why, what did your father do?" "He was a lawyer."

While manipulating the windlass of a well the other night, a party who had been laying in a stock of whiskey before it was all seized by the police, let the handle slip when the bucket was half-way up, and naturally enough received a chuck under the chin that knocked him over a neighboring fence. "Sold again," he muttered, as he climbed to his feet, "might anode-hic-better than to -hic-go foolin' roun' so much water. Betcher boots l'il stick t' whiskey after this.' Brooklyn Argus.

There was a "sewing party" (charity) at Mrs. Basteemup's the other evening, and during the affair the father of one of the young ladies present appeared on the scene unexpectedly. He was so much gratified by the cleverness exhibited by his daughter with her needle that he then and there resolved DRIDGE & CO.'s, 827 Broad street. Inh 24 that he would never pay another dressmaker's bill. That young lady has now a strong prejudice against "sewing parties," and says she was an idiot ever to attend such an affair .- New York Mail.

A well-dressed, matronly-looking lady walked into a saloon in Oswego, the other day, laid her muff on the counter, and took out a pair of spectacles, when the bartender promptly informed her that no Biblereading would be in order there. Reaching down into her dress pocket, the woman produced a flat bottle, and coolly called for a pint of whiskey. She doesn't know yet what that bar-tender was alarmed about.

A FRENCH CRITIC ON AMBRICAN BRAUTY. Standing one evening in that fringe of spectators which usually surrounds the dangers at an entertainment given by one of the American residents of Paris, a French painter next to me expressed his admiration of forty or fifty of my countrywomen who were whirling around to a Strauss waitz. The revolving bevy was composed of young women from sixteen to twenty-five, and they certainly looked very handsome. He reiterated with euthusiasm that he had never seen more beautiful girls anywhere—they were diamonds of the first water. On being asked if he did not see a single flaw, he evasively replied that none of us were perfect. Being pressed-entre hommes-be thought the hands were not as well formed as they might be, northe attaches -- an imperfection in the Saxon race. Was there anything else? Beauty was somewhat a matter of convention, was said again evasively, but further remark brought out the question whether had seen the Venus of Milo in the Louvre I had, and knew it was the accepted model of womanly perfection. Had I noted the waist of the wonderful statue? Had I remarked the difference between the waists of the women who were dancing before us and that of the Venus ? "You mean that the waists of my countrywomen are too long?" "Exactly; but then they have the mos beautiful faces in the world." To which was added : " My candor is atroclous." Then, as one of the fair dervishes (whom he knew) passed he ventured into English, and inquired with solicitude, " Miles, do you pickle your health?" indicating lexical research at the word preserve.-Albert Rhodes, in the Galaxy for May.

April 30th, 1874, at 3% o'clock P. M. By the request of the owner we will sell at the time, manner and place above mentioned, those fifty-five attractive and conveniently located lots in squares 18, 20, and 49, of Marx's addition, being within two and three squares of the market or public square of the city, on the principal streets leading to the free bridge, and in the centre of the city.

There are more improvements in buildings in proximity to these lots than in any other part of the city, eighteen or twenty dwellings just completed and being built within from one to three squares. They present to the person of small means a rare opportunity to buy a building lot, and to the capitalist a chance for large profits on his investments, as we believe that in a short time they will more than double their outlay. Special attention is called to the posted lithographic plaits of the above described property, or can be seen at our office.
